So Long, Farewell

By: Hyacinth

As this week comes to a close, we as the editors hope that you can look back at your days here with fond recollection. Although Dry Creek Louisiana may not be the most glamorous of places, it holds a special place in many of our hearts. We hope that over this next year, you recall the stony roads, piney woods, and good times. Our prayer for all of our readers is that you continue to walk in the light, calling on those with more wisdom when you wander into the dark. With our flames reignited, we depart from one another to show and tell the world all we've learned. Keep your lamps burning bright. Until next year...
